To whom it may concern,

My name is Kristen, I'm a hard working graduate with a passion for design and refinement. I'm looking to gain experience in development to expand my portfolio and launch a conducive career in digital media. I come from a STEM background and I work to create harmony between the creative process and logical reasoning. I have worked in government, advertising, and medical research and what's important to me is earning valuable experience among innovative problem solvers.

I've worked as a designer for over 3 years now; I have experience both in freelance and salaried positions. The breadth of my work expands over editorial design, branding, marketing, UX/UI, web design, and illustration. I've created work for brands like Dunkin' Donuts, AutoNation and UCF. Previously I've worked as an art director intern with Zimmerman Advertising and with Raytheon in their instructional design department. I'm currently a web developer for The College of Education and Human Performance. I have been in charge of creation, maintenance, and restructuring over 75 websites under our domain. I'm proficient in HTML/CSS3, Javascript, various frameworks, the entire Adobe creative suite, and version control programs.

Please look at my attached resume or at my website, kristenhanlon.me, to see more detailed information about myself and my work. Thank you for taking the time to look over my application and I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,
Kristen Hanlon
